

socialprotection.org invites agencies, governmental and non-governmental organisations, research centres, think tanks and individuals dedicated to a particular interest area related to social protection to create an Online Community.

Why create an Online Community?

- Gain access to a member's only virtual space for private or public engagement
- Define membership, content, knowledge sharing and capacity building activities
- Share and increase visibility of content: publication, event preparation/follow-up, community of practice, discussions
- Increase engagement with your institution
- Consolidate a network

Online Community features:

- Private or Public online visibility
- Customisable virtual space
- Discussion forum
- Public and private document sharing
- Events calendar
- Announcements section
- Members list
- Notifications system

Administration:

- Online Communities require administrator(s)
- Community administrator(s) must be representatives of or linked to the Community's content.
- Administrator(s) are responsible for generating and managing Community membership and content.
- The socialprotection.org team provides orientation and technical support.
- The socialprotection.org Team may collaborate in Community activities.

How to create an Online Community:

To create an Online Community, become a member of socialprotection.org. Then access the platform's Connect or Share action tab and click on Add Community.

socialprotection.org now features a notification system, allowing administrators and members to be kept up-to-date with edits or uploads made to their Online Community.

socialprotection.org's features

Discover

Publications, Programmes, Members and Stakeholders searches

Learn

Virtual Campus (e-courses and webinars), Learning Tools, Blog, Glossary and News

Connect

Online Communities, Discussion Forum, Events and Surveys

Share

Members can share content and access interactive features