socialprotection.org is a member-based online platform that facilitates knowledge-sharing and capacity-building on innovative and effective social protection policies and programmes, with a focus on low- and middle-income countries.

The unbranded platform brings together thousands of social protection practitioners from around the world and directs access to the most up-to-date and comprehensive content on social protection on a myriad of topics, for free.

Launched in September 2015, socialprotection.org benefits from the active collaboration of a broad range of partners, including governments, international organisations, research centres and academia, and non-governmental organisations, all sharing the common goal of offering an open and neutral space for the promotion of social protection.
